HEART & HAND

Reaching for a hand, and touching a heart

THE BEAUTY OF PEACE BY CHAPLAIN LIZ DANIELSEN

The year 2020 was extremely challenging and painful for all of us. The pandemic disrupted education and put additional stress on families. I think in time God will reveal to us that there were some good and beneficial things happening that year for everyone, but I am not sure we are ready to see that yet.

Most of us will remember the distancing from family, friends, and our community. We had to wash our hands constantly, wear masks, learn how to use technology that we never understood, and teach children how to learn virtually. Not being able to give the support we so earnestly wanted to give to our family and friends because of the restrictions that were placed upon us as a community, state, and country was just so difficult.

We were, and are still, struggling with all the losses that we have had to face. For me, it was the loss of my husband, who was my soulmate and best friend; my father, Frank; and my cousin, Arlene, who died of the virus without any family around at the hospital. I also had several lifelong friends die. It is hard to explain in words how the pain of separation feels when you have so many losses at once.

How about you? What are your losses? Did you lose a loved one or maybe you lost more than one? Other losses can include job loss, financial loss, loss of relationships, loss of courage, loss of independence, and loss of faith in God, just to mention a few. You may be at a place right now and believe that you have no hope for the future, or you are discouraged and feel defeated. I can understand how you would feel like that. It can cause us to be fearful and filled with anxiety and anger. You may not want to admit that you have changed and are not the same person you were before all this happened in 2020. We are entering 2021 with a new identity and that takes time to get used to. Some changes were good, and others were not so good.

The one thing I have learned for myself during this challenging time in my life is that I cannot allow my emotional feelings to dictate how I should feel and how I should do things. My feelings take me in all kinds of directions. My feelings bring me to a place of fear, isolation, weakness, and anger. What I have had to do is CHOOSE TO BELIEVE in the purpose and promise of each day that God has given me. I hear from Him through scripture and prayer. I hear from Him through others. God gives me what I need when I need it and not before. I can choose to allow the year 2020 and all the losses I have experienced to destroy me, and it can, or I can choose to trust God in spite of what is happening around me. No, this does not mean it is easy or painless. Loss produces much pain and suffering, but as we do the work that is needed to heal, we can come out on the other side better and not bitter. I choose to leave 2020 behind and go into 2021 knowing that I am not alone. My Savior Jesus Christ and precious people whom God sends my way walk beside me, guiding me, and reminding me that I have purpose because I am still alive. I have God's promises that I will make it. You can too.

How will you choose?

SCARS INTO STARS

BY PAM STILTON

In 2010, all was right in my life and the universe! I had a very successful dog/cat boarding facility ('Ohana Pet Paradise), caring for people's pets while they went on a vacation, and I lived on a farm with over 33 personal animals (including alpacas, dogs, cats, and goats). Things were good - until they weren't.

Over the next two years, I would experience the unexpected loss of my father, mother, sister, last aunt, uncle, and cousin. Both my mother and sister died in my arms within two weeks of each other. My life changed overnight, and I felt alone and lost in this world and didn't know which end was up. It was almost my emotional undoing.

Soon after the loss of my mother and sister, I began searching for therapists/ agencies in the surrounding areas that offered services for grief support or counseling, but I was very discouraged as I discovered that I couldn't afford any of them as I had limited financial resources. Then I found Spiritual Care Support Ministries!

"It was never easy, but by learning to take one step, one prayer, and one breath at a time, I became aware of the Lord carrying me through it all until I could walk on my own!"

Between the classes that were offered, one-on-one counseling, and support offered by Liz and her staff, all at no cost to me, I survived those devastating first months and years and pulled through. It was never easy, but by learning to take one step, one prayer, and one breath at a time, I became aware of the Lord carrying me through it all until I could walk on my own again!

Times are different now. My husband and I are still on our farm, but our boarding business is beginning to wind down, and we have now said goodbye to many of our beloved furry friends.

I've gotten older (and hopefully wiser), and I've definitely become aware of how life comes around full-circle. I am thrilled to say that I have recently joined the staff of SCSM as their receptionist! Life is definitely what you make it (scars and all). It is my hope that I can be a blessing to others and pay forward the love that I was given in my time of need by giving back to others currently seeking help. God definitely turns our scars into

Thank you Manassas Presbyterian Church for the lovely prayer shawls and blankets!

The shawls have been knitted or crocheted and prayed over by women who believe in the power of prayer. As people place these shawls around them during a moment of crisis, it is a reminder that God and others care and can bring change to a person's life.

If you are someone who is willing to provide prayer blankets for children and teens, please contact our office for details.

HEARTACHE BY RAY GILBERT

A wise man once told me some words I never knew.
He said, "When someone you love dies, a part of you dies too."

A mother, a brother, a lover, a friend. One after another, when does it end?

The part of you that dies you will know from the start.

Because the part of you that dies, is a part of your heart.

Ray Gilbert and David Price were coming home one day from bowling and were talking about the loss of each one's wife and the pain of those losses. David expressed how aware a person becomes when someone you love dies because a part of you dies with them. These words led Ray to write the poem to the left.

With all the COVID-19 impact, stress, and adversity for so many, depression, anxiety, addictions, and suicide have dramatically increased since mid-April. The internet is filled with many tips to help cope, but the following ad really caught my attention: "10 ways to be happier in 2 minutes or less." Wow! What a deal! I would even splurge and give up 10 minutes. Would you have been tempted to click on that link? Be honest with yourself! I would really like to know how many people did click in search of quick-hithappiness. I'm even more curious to see how many Christians clicked.

Why is true lasting happiness, regardless of circumstances, so hard to "find?"

Moreover, when we do find happiness, why does it seem to leave so quickly? Scripture tells us that God created us as earthen vessels. However, we are very leaky containers that can never stay filled because our fleshly lenses are so "me" and "now" oriented. We pursue quick fixes to soothe ourselves. We focus on our discomforts and what we lack. Happiness seems elusive. Our selfish need to have more makes happiness very short-lived.

We need frequent refills because we are emptied so quickly. While it's true we are earthen vessels, God designed us to be filled with heavenly content that that can't leak out. His desire is to fill us with Himself and His wisdom. The million-dollar decision that we get to make every day is whether we will fill our vessel with what God offers or fill it with the crappy stuff that easily leaks out.

So, here are some questions to ponder. Where do you go to fill up your vessel? What do you put in your vessel? In addition, when you do put God's gifts in your vessel, do you use and reuse them and enjoy the happiness they bring? Do you pour them out and replace them with a cheap substitute? Do you go to the dollar store to grab items that break easily, causing you to revisit frequently without ever being satisfied? If so, go to the luxury store where you'll find quality that lasts. What's more, God's luxury store is full of FREE items and He'll give them to you abundantly.

Today, more than ever, remain in the presence of God. He is excited and pleased to fill you with His Glory-gifts. But this takes time. Don't rush the process. Examine some truths you already know. See if you can consistently apply them to a couple more small areas of your life, instead of applying cheap imitations from the world or your past. This is how you use and re-use the Glory-gifts in your vessel. Whether your pursuit of happiness pushes you to fill yourself with what God offers or you fill yourself with the leaky and ineffective false claims of the world - it's your decision, so choose well.

"However, we possess this precious treasure in vessels of earth, that the grandeur and exceeding greatness of the power may be shown to be from God and not from ourselves."

YOUR DONATION MAKES A DIFFERENCE

BY CHAPLAIN LIZ DANIELSEN

The year 2020 was difficult for children, teens, and adults all over the country and the world. The COVID-19 pandemic caused us to socially distance, wear masks, feel depressed, feel anger, and wonder why God would allow this to happen. People felt weak in their faith, and some wanted to abandon their trust in God that they had for so many years. There were others that came to us that wanted to know more about God and found healing for for so many years. There were others that came to us that wanted to know more about God and found healing for themselves and their marriages or other relationships. Some needed resources and other people wanted Bibles that they did not have, and we were able to give them what they needed. The pandemic made some people interested in going deeper in the understanding of who God is and will be for them.

Because of your donation, we can do this.

The losses were numerous, and God knew that many years ago when God gave me the vision of SCSM in a dream. That is when Spiritual Care Support Ministry counselors stepped in during the year reassuring children, teens, and adults that God does understand their pain. We were able to give them the support that they requested. Being available to them and hearing their stories, and in doing so they found healing and purpose, and fear did not have a stronghold on them anymore.

Because of your generosity, we can do this.

TEENS AND GRIEF

BY GINA PETRO

On September 6, 2005, my sons, John and James, lost their dad. He died suddenly of a heart attack at 42 years old. John had been living with his dad before he died while James lived with my husband, his stepbrothers, and me. After his father's death, John had to transfer to a new school, make new friends, and readjust to a large family life full-time. At his dad's home, he was the only child. John was overwhelmed with grief and frequently told me how much he hated me. He couldn't yet see that his being home with us was just where he needed to be.

"I realized that I had to grieve for my ex-husband, forgive him, and let go of all the bitterness.

Otherwise, I would not be able to help my sons grieve."

James did not have the bond that John did with their father. He always felt closer to his stepfather. He felt anger for "missing out" on time with his dad and struggled to grasp onto memories of him. John's grieving was more outward and James' was more inward with occasional bursts of crying and questions.

Our pastor suggested grief counseling at Spiritual Care Support Ministries. I set up an appointment to meet Chaplain Liz who we called Ms. Liz. She spoke with the boys and me about the things we were feeling. She reassured us this was normal. Then at the end of the session she prayed with us. We began seeing Ms. Liz weekly, and we all looked forward to seeing her. The boys would always share what was on their hearts with her, and they began to learn to grieve and grow.

Ms. Liz would generously offer me reading material. How to Help Your Teenager Grieve,

How to Help Your Young Child Cope with

Death, etc. It was through reading one of these booklets that I learned about a beautiful word: EMPATHY. I realized that I had to grieve for my ex-husband (something I was resisting), forgive him, and let go of all the bitterness. Otherwise, I would not be able to help my sons grieve. In doing so, I could be there for them, listen when they wanted to talk, help them remember memories and things about their dad, focus on good things about him, and plan a road trip to put flowers on his grave. We even honored their dad that December with three lights on the SCSM Christmas tree. It was a great time to reflect on how far we had come, how much SCSM and Ms. Liz had
